Nicole qualified as a children's nurse in 2014 and has built upon her training by gaining experience within various private and NHS healthcare settings. Nicole's background is as a specialist complex care nurse. She has over 10-years' experience working with children and adults.

Nicole's career has involved working as an intensive care nurse at Queens Medical Centre, followed by working for Derbyshire NHS Foundation Trust in the capacity of a community children's nurse and lead children and young people's neurodevelopment nurse. She then embarked into complex care specialist nursing and rehabilitation case manager roles.

In 2018, Nicole started work as a case manager, developing her skills to support young people and those with a spinal cord injury, amputation, or other complex diagnoses, to rebuild their lives after sustaining catastrophic injuries.

Throughout her career, working with verbal and non-verbal patients, relatives and other professionals, Nicole has developed skills and knowledge required to manage those with significant rehabilitation needs.

Nicole classes herself as having particular interest in managing the care of patients that require rehabilitation from brain injuries. This aspect of nursing has always been a passion of hers with her having had both personal and professional experience of looking after children and supporting family members who have been through their own rehabilitation process following a car accident. This therefore makes her experienced in managing caseloads of children with brain injuries while also understanding the implications on the individual and their family members due to her own personal experience.

Nicole is a member of the Royal College of Nursing, the British Association of Brain Injury and Case Management, the Nursing and Midwifery Council and the Case Management Society UK.
